CAPE COD CHARACTERS
FOREFRONT BY AUTHOR

An audience of 300 enjoyed the reading and character sketches of Cape Cod folk by Joseph C. Lincoln, author of the famous Cape Cod stories, at the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial parish house Friday evening.

Mrs. Lincoln appeared under the auspices of the Parish House Association of Park Congregational church.

The reader was introduced by Mrs. Albert M. Van Wagoner, president of the Parish House Association. After his preliminary remarks which were interspersed with a number of humorous stories, Mrs. Lincoln spoke briefly of the discovery and early history of Cape Cod, then gave character sketches of the old time, sea captain. In the old days, almost without exception, every Cape Cod man went to sea. They started as cabin boys at the age of 11, were mates at 15 or 16 and captains at 21 or 22. They were stamper patriots.

After illustrating with humorous stories the quick wit of the old Cape Codder, Mrs. Lincoln described at some length the old sea captain's home. The houses were white and invariably the blinds were closed. The front door was generally a large front door with brick walk leading from the street, but the front door was hardly opened more than once or twice a year, as callers always used the side door. The front door opened on a small hall which led to the "holly of holies," the best front parlor. The "best front parlor" was seldom used except for weddings and funerals.

In connection with his description of the old sea captain's home the author read one of his own poems, The Best Spare Room. This was followed by a recitation of "The Old Cape Codder" by Mrs. Lincoln. Mrs. Lincoln also read selections from several of his short stories.

Following the readings a reception was held in the parlor, where refreshments were served. Many of those present greeted Mrs. Lincoln personally.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Tirrell, Mrs. Albert M. Van Wagoner and Miss Louise Rowe, assisted Mrs. Lincoln in receiving. Refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Frederick T. Saville, Mrs. E. T. Phillips and Miss Dorothy Phillips.

The general committee in charge of the evening comprised Mrs. Albert M. Van Wagoner, Mrs. Henry D. Johnson, Mrs. William H. Collins, Mrs. Henry A. Tirrell, Mrs. George T. Saville, Mrs. A. A. MacDiarmid, Miss Hannah Crowell, Miss Jane Hill, Miss Louise C. Howe, Mrs. George L. Jewell, Mrs. W. Tyler Browne and Mrs. Edward J. Graham.

COMMON PLEAS CASE
OVER AUTOMOBILE TRANSACTION

Judge C. B. Waller took the papers in the case of A. Frank Greene of this city vs. Ferdinand Gagnon of Putnam, after the case had been heard in the common pleas court here Friday. The suit is over an unpaid note for $1,000 in a Putnam bank.

In the summer of 1919 Greene, it is claimed, sold Gagnon an automobile truck for $1,250, receiving a used truck for which he allowed Gagnon $1,500 and the balance in notes. The note for $1,000 remained unpaid and was added by Greene as he had endorsed the note when made by Gagnon. Greene claims the truck taken in trade was not worth $1,500 and that when he sold it he only received $500 for it which he applied to part payment of the note.

Gagnon claimed he only knew of the note being unpaid when suit was brought and that he did not get any notice from the bank when it was due. The case hinged on the value of the used car and the agreement as to the way it entered into the transaction. The witnesses included State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatrick of Putnam and others. The lawyers in the case are Torrey of Putnam and Stewart of Norwich.

ACCEPT PLANS FOR WEST SIDE SCHOOL

The plans of William Thomas Towser of New York, an architect who submitted plans for the new school building on the West Side, were accepted by the school board on Friday evening at a special meeting held for the consideration of the plans. The school board has been considering the plans of several architects, 12 having submitted plans, and Friday evening it was voted to accept the plans of the New York architect.

The plans chosen were considered the best submitted and were as near as possible to the idea of the local committee for a school building. The plans are for a 15 room building, with auditorium. This building will be of modern fireproof type with a frontage on Elizabeth street. There will be two entrances, one for the girls and one for the boys. These entrances will be on the same level as the main entrance. Opening from these corridors will be the domestic science and sewing rooms for the girls and the manual training and machine shop for the boys. Going down several stairs, there will be the auditorium, 43x75 feet, with the ceiling 14 feet from the floor. On the next floor will be located the class rooms, each room to accommodate 40 pupils. The corridors will be in tile and the stairs concrete with the floors in the class rooms concrete covered with battleship linoleum or some other suitable floor covering. The exterior finish will be in selected brick with limestone trimming and the interior finish will be oak. The roof will be slate with copper flashings. In the rear there is to be a platform and under this platform will be located the heating plant and the coal bunkers.

The committee on Friday evening said that the cost of the building will be well within the appropriation for a new building. It was estimated that the cost would be as soon as possible and it is hoped that it will be completed in time for occupation by next year.

AUTO TRUCK CRASHES
INTO DR. WILCOX'S AUTO

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich state hospital, and four of the hospital trustees who were riding in the doctor's new Hudson sedan received cuts and bruises Friday morning when a Brockton C. E. Bromley's son's three-quarter ton auto truck ran into the doctor's automobile on the road near the Cape Cod hospital.

Costello Lippitt, H. H. Gallup, Dr. J. J. Donohue and Arthur P. Libby were the trustees in the superintendent's car, of whom Mr. Lippitt suffered the worst receiving cuts on the face, including a deep laceration on the forehead. Mr. Lippitt was taken to the hospital where he was treated by Dr. Wilcox. Mr. Gallup had a cut in his wrist that was closed with stitches, and all received minor bruises and contusions.

Dr. Wilcox had come to the city to take the four local trustees to the hospital for the quarterly meeting, and was on the right of the road, just about to turn into the driveway at the hospital, when the Brockton truck, driven by young Charles Bromley, came into sight from the opposite direction and traveling at from 30 to 40 miles an hour, according to what some of the men in the doctor's car said, struck the doctor's car.

The Brockton truck was within a few feet of the Wilcox automobile, the truck suddenly swung to the left sharply across the road, registering a square hit near the door on the left side of the doctor's car.

Mr. Lippitt, who was on the rear seat at the right in the doctor's machine, was thrown up and forward on to Mr. Gallup who was next to Dr. Wilcox on the front seat. The truck was in the air for a few moments and then fell to the ground on top of him. Dr. Donohue had been on the back seat next to Mr. Lippitt and Mr. Libby had been sitting on the side of the machine where the auto truck hit.

Mr. Lippitt was dazed for a few minutes and his face was covered with blood so that those in the machine thought he had been very seriously injured. He was given first aid treatment by Dr. Donohue and taken to the state hospital with Mr. Gallup, where both were attended by Drs. Bryan and Burdall of the hospital staff. Mr. Gallup was able to stay to the meeting of the trustees, but Mr. Lippitt was brought to his home in the automobile of H. F. Dawley, who was at the Dawley lumber yard at Port Point.

Young Bromley, who was driving the truck, was catapulted through the windshield of his machine, but escaped with cuts on his hands and bruises. He walked to the hospital and was given attention by Dr. J. H. Allen.

According to Attorney Libby, he asked the truck driver immediately after the accident what he was trying to do and young Bromley said his windshield was all covered with mist so that he could not see anything. The attorney upbraided Bromley for driving at such speed and was able to see what was ahead of him, and Bromley then claimed that he had put on his brakes but the truck had skidded.

Both machines were badly damaged. The front wheels, windshield, driving gear and other parts of the front of the truck were broken and knocked in. The body of the Wilcox car was badly damaged and the windshield broken.

QUEER STORY TOLD BY HARRIS OF ELWELL MURDER

Buffalo, N. Y., April 8.—Roy Harris, who confessed on Wednesday night that he was one of the principals in the murder of Joseph B. Elwell in New York last June, will be taken to New York city, probably on Sunday. It was said tonight by H. P. Oswald, of the Metropolitan Detective bureau.

Oswald said that there was some points in Harris' story remaining to be checked up here and that the work probably would take all of tomorrow. The detective refused to say whether the decision to take Harris to New York indicated a belief that there was a basis of truth in the prisoner's story of the Elwell murder.

That Harris is mentally and physically normal was the opinion expressed by Dr. James W. Putnam, alienist, who made a second examination of Harris today.

The examination was made at the request of Detective Oswald, who indicated his belief that Harris' story was the work of a disordered brain. Oswald questioned Harris at length today without developing, he said, any substantial change in the prisoner's story of how he and a companion were hired by a woman to kill Elwell.

Oswald said Harris told a " queer" story of what became of the $500 he claims to have received from the mysterious "Mrs. Fairchild" in part payment for the murder. Harris told the detective he lost $500 of the money betting on the horse Man of War. When Oswald expressed skepticism, Harris explained that he bet on the horse "to lose."

The rest of the money, Harris told the detective, he lost in a poker game played in a vacant store in New York. There were fourteen other players, but he knew them only by their first names. It was after hearing this story that Oswald asked for an examination of Harris by an alienist.

When told today his wife said: "He's not guilty; just crazy." Harris smiled and said:

"She probably isn't the only one who thinks I have a room or two for rent in my upper story. She bases her belief that I am lying in the head on the fact that some time ago I wrote her a few letters in which I got a bit sentimental."

The name of the organization was changed to Norwich Fish and Game association so as to include hunters as well as fishermen in its membership. It was voted to join the State Fishermen's association and Mr. Ives was made the voting delegate from Norwich to attend the convention in Meriden.

The matter of buying black bass fry for stocking in Gardner lake and Long pond was left to the executive committee.

The officers were re-elected as follows: President, A. C. Brown; vice president, Joseph L. Oat; secretary and treasurer, W. W. Ives; executive committee, E. Lewis Young, Otis B. Hall, Louis Ortmann.

When the business session adjourned a "fisherman's lunch" of cheese and crackers, sliced meat, doughnuts and coffee was served under the direction of Vice President C. E. Brown.

Many renewed their membership during the evening and a number of new members were received. The officers will endeavor to increase the membership list to a large extent this year.
